It is well it is not the relation of the french sabinet Ministers! Americans, take good care. You have going through hir breath frapes. Be calm, collected, and very ligitant. During the late wonderful expedition, a body of our federal infantry while lying a body of our federal infantry while lying the extreme not to put our whole militia without delay, upon the best possible foot-

Lord Camelford who has been recently checked in filme project of treachery, is the cousin of Mr. Pit. His family name is Piti, and he is the fon of a perion of that mame who made himfelt conflictions by opposing the family politics, until unler the flort adminifration of Lord Sbelinen he was created a for 1—This lord died about four years ago, and the fon, who was bred in the nary fucceeded to the title and the immense fortune acquired by his father, no one (except the British Cabinet) can tell how; for the father was poor when he went into parliament, as were all the Pitt family, until they derived it in time by public places lather was poor when he went into par-liament, as were all the Pitt family, un-til they derived it in time by public places or by mairriage.

The prefent Lord, has been conficiency on two occasions, one in the Wreck of a flip of war in the ice to fouthward of the Cape of Good Hope, when after a feries of prodigious miferies he was fo brutunate as to efcape along with the celebrated lieutenant Riou.

This young adventurer foon after his return to England, was appointed to a fation in the Well-Indies, and here he unde himfelf confiptious by min dering an officer in the navy in a molf unprece-dented manner; he was guilty of feveral other affidinations, but his family influ-ence has prevailed over juffice, and faved him from the gallaws. For he has not even been tried for the nurder he com-mitted at Januaica.

even been tried for the murder he com-mitted at Jamaica.

A character of fuch a disposition can-not derive much [olace from the most splendid fortune; the perpetual stings of conscience must render returement, or so-cial joys hateful to him.

conscience must render retirement, or focial joys hateful to him.

What could be his object in the attempt to proceed to France 2—We will not thuppofe that his relations could felect him to proceed upon the duties of a spy; his ungovernable ferocity is not calculated for that occupation; the smooth sty, his ungovernable ferocity is not calculated for the country of a Madjeti are light cafculated for fuch purpofes.

We cannot furpect one of the family of First bred in the Regilih navy, and of the finof diversable fanguinary chiracter, with a fortune of 30,000 a year in England, to be attached to republican views. The question then recurs what could be his view's —Diffusible, with arms peculiarly calculated for affaffination, and for France, what could be his views! We can only argue from the murderous diffonition of the man—He who could murder a brother leutenant at Jamaica in collabod, would hefitate little about affination. can only argue non the number of the internal cape in the number of the man—He who could murder a brother lieutenant at Jamaiac in cold, blood, would be fitate little about a flinating a French director. Fofficip he conceived that if fome one of the directors were dead, France could be destroyed.—
The English are always calculating upon men—as if Frence had only a few men of the directors where dead, France could be destroyed.—
Legisland, but Jourdan, Moreavent Capelland, but Jourdan, John Capelland, Jo armics marching in three columns and dic-cating a peace at the gates of Vienna; their fplendid and unequalled conquests, were all attributed to the Superior genits of Boongharte; this general embarks for Egypa and achieves its conquest, and then Finne was Supported to have no great generals.—Austria diplays a hotile diffi-tion, Augereau appears on the Rhine, and all is quiet. Some operations on the Spantish frontier are Supported in the Super-is on the Summit of the Pyrennees and all is still. The petty defpot of Turin is car-fying on a hotile intrigue, Joubert appears and the monarch becomes a private indiviis still. The petty approver a more rying on a hotlie intigue, Joubert a ppears and the monarch becomes a private individual. The Napolitan ideot prompted by a British minister threatens to conquer the French an Italy, Côampionet appears and another King disappears from the kalender of defeptism and crimes. English cupidity attributes all these achieve-

During the late wonderful expedition, a body of our federal infantry while lying at Allen-towin, exhibited a very fingular picture of military fagacity and valor; it was right, when one of the waggons was attacked; a fentinel gave the alarm, the twas right, when one of the waggons was attacked; a fentinel gave the alarm, the drums beat to arms, and the whole corps, confisting of those heroes which Goliab (Hand et al. 1998). The deferribed in fuch picteresque stile, or of what the Baston major would call it fellows of iron arreve, "flocked round their standard; fixteen rounds of ball will be the waster of the standard; fixteen rounds of ball cartridge, and stand to your arms was the word. A certain member of Congress was seen out to reconnotive; and returned with the chie in his singers. The enemy was seen in the rear of the baggage in great force; the cotps of heroes did not discover a single pale face—for it was dark as pitch—they mayched up in Hestian time to the point of action; two horrid weapons were discovered protruding their juzzles from behind the waggon; a platoon was ordered to sire; a heavy groan was heald and a violent concustion of the earth, as if Olfa had tumbled from the top of Polion—ths atonished heroes trembled with the disturbed earth—a sew more bold than the rest dared to venture forward—behold the enemy stretched; his combrous careasse behind the waggon; and a stream of slood issuing from his imnoveable careass—it was a Bull; that had been making free with a little of the forage that hung out of the waggon—the owner however was compensated the next day for his bull—and, the troops marched—be it rumembered these were regular troops that shilled the bull.

The flate trials proceed flowly, and properly very flow—Thefday was occupied in diffcusing the zonflithionality first and flubfcupinty the expediency of trying the accused by a Jury of their own vicinage—Mr. Sigreaves and Mr. Ravie against the prifoners—Meffer. Lewis and Dallas for them. The court decided for their trial in this city. The court was occupied yesterday in the business, but proceed laud bily flow—men's passiona ought to be very cool on such occasions.

We shall to-morrow publish some extracts from Dr. Greene's fast day seemon; and our readers will judge for themselve whether our strictures on that sermon, as now acknowledged by himself, were untust or just. lust or just.

It is particularly worthy of remark, that news from Europe of the most interesting kind has only now began to transpire, which has been received in English newf-papers at New-York above twelve days—We can affert, that in one office the news was purposely suppressed.

It is faid there are letters in town re-ceived by the veilel that brought hither the new agent of Tevszart—Mt. Bouries, from Martinique and Guadiloupe, we have barely heard that the letters have been received without any other particu-lars, than that they contain fone facts of an important nature, which we shall look out to learn.

The federalifis, despairing to support their declining cause by honest means, have reforted to the patter of clarm purched, in kagland, trem which country their, measures are so shirbfully copied. Hence the try of treatons, plots, and eshiphidiers, is echoed through the continent by all the trumpeters of the party, from the congressional Harper down to the last, false, service and yenal publications that ever polluted the sountains of society." The Charleson Tale of the Tudy, we were told, was to "convict the minds of all but such at deserve transportation to France or the gallows." And what did this mighty affair, about which Mr. Pickerieg, and half a feore of undestrappers made so great ceremony and clamour, amount to 2 Why it teems that the lady whold intrigues surnished matter for $0,000 copies of dispatches, had pleased a certain person in the embassy see when the contrast person in the embassy see the surnished certain person in the embassy see when the ways from France to America for the wayes of her fervice. And for this the United States are to be roused and kept in terror and uproar for two months, in daily expectation of seeing an hundred thoustand from the clouds, to the seed of the seed ious piece of work, it is hoped, will teat those friends to order and consistency all the caution in future; lest they cry wole so often when there are none that the will not be believed when danger is real at hard.
